Many Attend WIVH Open House

A lot of guests enjoyed the great fellowship at WIVH's Open House

The Free Will Praise Team provided great music for the event.

Lucy Morales, Christine Isaacs and Helena Straker-Phipps serving food.

Arlene and Navin Franklin blessed the crowd with their singing.

The children enjoyed face painting and, of course, the delicious food.

The recent Open House held here at WIVH is the highlight of our first term as operators of WIVH. It was a delight to everyone attending. Many photos of the event are included in this month's Voice. A special thank you goes to Plaza Extra and Pueblo for their contributions toward the event.

We continue to have control board problems here at WIVH and the station's video projector is not working, both affected by storm surges back in October. Sometimes contributors prefer to give funds toward specific projects. These are two projects you may want to take under consideration.

Rennix Bowery, of Estate Baron's, St. Thomas, said WIVH is being heard loud and clear where she lives. She used to live in St. Croix back in the 1960's and has family living there.

Margaret Maynard, Lorraine Village, Fredriksted, says WIVH helps to keep her going in her Christian walk.

A new caller to "Shirl and You" was Charlene Davis, Zion Hill, She listens to WIVH all the time. It keeps her connected to the Lord. She said where she was born and raised is not as important as that she is a child of God.

Tionee Veria, St. Croix, is praying that God will bless WIVH. She's been listening a long time and finds the station a light in the darkness.

Another new caller, Gwenneth Weeks, of Zion Farm, said WIVH really motivates her when her spirit is down. She asked for prayer for her walk with the Lord and that she would be more Christ-like.

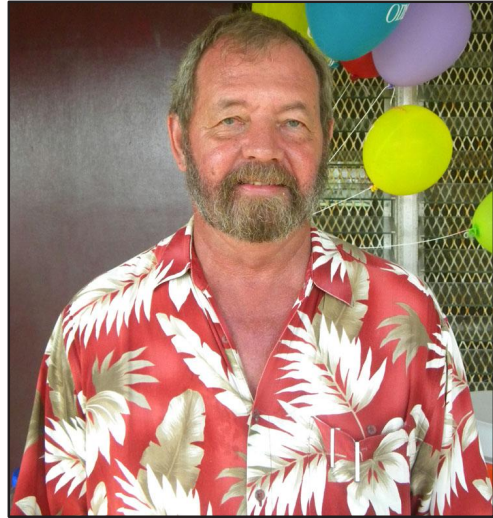

Carmie Thompson, St. Croix, said she is wonderfully blessed by WIVH.

Sylvia Parris, St. Croix, works as supervisor in the foster grandparent program. She said out of 38 volunteers, only two of them are men. They enable children to receive help one-on-one.

WIVH's Correspondence School continues here. Call for a list of free courses available to anyone requesting them, call 718-2852.

Visit us at the studios and pick up your free signs and bumper stickers.
